The International Human Rights Training Program

The International Human Rights Training Program (IH RTP) is at the heart of Equitas' activities. Now in its 31st year, this annual three-week education event brings together over 120 participants from approximately 60 countries. The IH RTP is an intermediate-level program. It provides a unique opportunity for human rights workers and educators to deepen their understanding of human rights and of the essential role of human rights education in effecting social change.

The IH RTP is an integral part of Equitas' Global Human Rights Education Program (GHREP) which in addition to the IH RTP includes follow-up human rights education initiatives with selected IH RTP alumni in their home regions.

Participants in the IH RTP include representatives of non-governmental organizations (NGOs), national and regional human rights institutions and government bodies. If you feel you and your organization meet the selection criteria and the program objectives meet your respective needs, I invite you to complete the attached application form.

Ian Hamilton
Executive Director

Program Goal

The goal of the IH RTP is to strengthen the capacity of human rights organizations to undertake human rights education efforts (e.g., training, awareness campaigns, information dissemination, and advocacy) aimed at building a global culture of human rights.

To this end, the Program places a strong emphasis on the transfer of learning and on follow-up activities. Participants attending the Program develop an Individual Plan for putting their learning into action as part of the training. Therefore, when submitting their application, both organizations and Candidates nominated should consider how the transfer of learning might take place within and beyond the organization after the

Program. (See Individual Plan section below for some examples)

Program Objectives

By the end of the IH RTP, participants should be able to:

- use a framework based on internationally accepted human rights standards and principles to analyze the issues and situations encountered in the work of their organizations
- determine how to incorporate participatory methods and techniques into their human rights education work
- indicate appropriate ways for putting their learning from the IH RTP into practice in the work of their organizations
- identify opportunities for future collaborative and networking activities essential for furthering the cause of human rights
- determine strategies for promoting gender equality in their human rights education work
- employ a basic evaluation process for assessing the results of their human rights education work

Curriculum Model

The participatory curriculum design model of the IH RTP is based on principles of adult experiential learning. The underlying principle is that much of the content will come from the participants and that the Program will serve as a framework for drawing out this content. Participants and facilitators commit themselves to engage in a process of mutual teaching and learning. The emphasis is on practical application and on the development of strategies for action. Continued reflection and evaluation are central to the learning process.

Participants work for the most part in groups of about 15 with a facilitator whose role is to provide guidance in achieving the Program objectives. The facilitators are skilled in adult education methods, knowledgeable about human rights and experienced in working with diverse groups. Internationally recognized human rights experts are invited to give presentations and participate in panel discussions throughout the three-week program.

Program Content

The IHRTP is an intermediate-level program focusing on international human rights standards, current human rights issues and human rights education strategies. The exploration of human rights principles and instruments, ongoing critical reflection and inquiry, as well as extensive sharing of experiences allows participants to strengthen their capacity to engage in effective human rights education leading to social change.

Week 1

Participants will get to know the members of their working group and engage in activities that lay the groundwork for developing a productive group dynamic based on mutual respect. They will become familiar with the overall Program content and methodology and begin a process of reflection on their individual societies, the human rights work of their organizations and their own role within those organizations. Participants will also compare their roles as human rights activists/educators and reflect on the universality of rights.

Week 2

Participants will begin the week discussing major human rights issues, leading to an examination of their roles as human rights workers in the current global context. Through case studies and discussions, participants will examine the main international human rights instruments in order to explore the usefulness of these instruments in their work.

Week 3

During a number of activities, participants are grouped by geographic region, giving them an opportunity to work together to:

- examine key components of effective monitoring and advocacy and the role of these activities in human rights education
- become familiar with methods of evaluating educational activities

Individual Plan for Putting Learning into Action

During the program, every participant is required to prepare an Individual Plan for putting their learning into practice once they return to their home organizations. By reflecting on the content of each Stream of the Program, the Individual Plan helps the participants determine how content is transferable to their own context, resulting in a planned integration of this new knowledge in the future activities of their organization. Throughout the Program, participants will have opportunities to discuss their Individual Plans with other participants, their facilitators and Equitas staff for feedback. Examples of past activities developed in Individual Plans and carried out afterwards include: organization of training sessions based on certain components of the IHRTP, integration of participatory methodology in training sessions, translation of training manuals, the creation of networks and the development of new programs and partnerships.

Organization and Participant Profile

Organizations and Candidates are carefully selected in order to maximize the benefits from the IHRTP.

Organizations which nominate Candidates must:

- have an established record for effective action

The IHRTP is primarily designed for representatives of non-governmental human rights organizations (NGOs), national human rights institutions and government departments who have undertaken some human rights education training activities. In a limited number of cases, consideration will also be given to Candidates affiliated with other types of organizations involved in human rights education and corresponding to the above profile, such as educational institutions.

Selection Process and Bursaries

A Selection Committee will review all applications. In addition to the requirements previously listed, consideration will also be given to overall gender balance and geographic representation. Given the number of applications and limited space available, we are unable to accept many worthy Candidates. Your understanding is greatly appreciated.

International Candidates:

Through the support of the Canadian International Development Agency (CIDA), Equitas has funding to award a limited number of bursaries to selected International Candidates. A bursary includes full tuition fees (including room and board) for the 3-week training program as well as travel expenses. Once eligibility has been determined, the Selection Committee will award the bursaries to the Candidates who best meet the requirements. Due to the limited number of bursaries available, there is no guarantee that the selected Candidates will receive funding.

Therefore, we strongly urge all Candidates to immediately begin seeking funding from other sources. Completed applications must be returned to Equitas by November 21st, 2009 and all Candidates will be notified of the results of the selection by the end of March 2009.

Due to the limited number of bursaries available, there is no guarantee that the selected Candidates will receive funding. Therefore, we strongly urge all Candidates to immediately begin seeking funding from other sources. Completed applications must be returned to Equitas by March 31st, 2010 and Canadian applicants will be notified by the end of April 2010.
